A Letter from the President

Redefining Hope

As we at SANAD mark our ten-year anniversary, I reflect upon our unique journey in serving our patients who have advanced chronic and terminal illnesses and their families; our past very much like our future are challenged with the uncertainty of our times. As I deconstruct the ten years between our hospice care support services, technical and administrative duties and look closely at the patient experience, I am filled with pride; SANAD's team demonstrates and embodies a profound and deeper understanding of the word "hope", as our patients face the most difficult physical, emotional and psychological challenges.

We have found throughout the years that hospice patients and their families alike experience a sense of serenity, acceptance, surrender and immerse themselves in the moment, living it to the fullest.

The nature of our work is sensitive and challenging, but the extraordinary circumstances that have taken over Lebanon have changed the context dramatically. Political unrest, economic struggles and most recently, the spread of the COVID -19 virus qualify these times as truly unprecedented. Everything everyone is doing right now is being done for the first time, and the SANAD team is no different. Yet we operate with tenacity and unwavering commitment to our patients and their families.

Our response has been swift; we have rolled out an emergency policy and an action plan that has not compromised the team's safety nor our reach to patients and their families. We have addressed obstacles with full force and created solutions; ensuring that the preservation of the dignity and quality of life of our patients continues to be at the forefront of our commitment, up until the very end.

A Letter from the President

While all the team members carry out their responsibilities efficiently, I am taken aback by the intensity of the complex and extreme cases that have required our care and support, and I am even more amazed at the resilience, commitment, and resolute determination of the nurses, doctors, and psychologists, to present so many layers of hope, more so during these turbulent times.

It is testing (painful) to see what patients have to endure, and, sometimes in shock, we ask ourselves: “what more can one handle?” and while that is a question we know we can’t answer, we find that our care is shrouded in belief and commitment to a cause, and that belief is exactly what keeps us sane and grateful to be doing what we do.

I write this letter in the midst of the COVID -19 crisis, another hit affecting humanity everywhere. We have responded with a policy that attests to our commitment to principles in respecting our public health responsibility towards our country, managing technical and administrative needs, reaching our patients at their homes and providing the best care to them and their families.

Like all the challenges we have previously faced, we are hopeful that “this too shall pass” and we are empowered with new hope. With your continued support, SANAD only sees a future filled with hope and unremitting growth. Your moral and material giving empowers our hope for the future as we continue to support our patients and their families in a context like no other.

These are unprecedented times for everyone, not only in Lebanon but everywhere in the world. These circumstances have redefined our collective understanding of what obstacles really look like and how they should be addressed. We are all in the same metaphorical boat and our collective pain must influence our collective actions for a better future. No one knows yet what that future is going to look like, but we do know that we will carry through with some familiarity as is our instinctive nature to stand by one another, for each other, in dignity.

Medical and Nursing Units

Medical Team

Nursing Team

We provide home hospice care services in Greater Beirut and Mid Beqaa through an interdisciplinary team composed of nurses, physicians and psychologists using a patient-centered, family-oriented approach and addressing the physical, social, psychological, spiritual and cultural needs of the patients and their families. Hospice care provided by our medical and nursing team follows the National Comprehensive Cancer Network palliative care guidelines for symptoms management and guided by the Clinical Practice Guidelines for Quality Palliative Care by the National Consensus Project. The nursing and medical units work in coordination and collaboration with the mental health and quality, research and development units to provide patients and their families with holistic care ensuring the best quality of life possible.

Medical and Nursing Units

I just wanted to take a minute to thank all of you for your incredible help and support to my family during these past trying times. We couldn't have done it without you. Thank you for making my dad comfortable during his last months and for ensuring that he has a peaceful and painless end of life. You truly were our SANAD and we will never forget you.

- A Kind Testimony by a Patient's Family

Clinical Support to Patients and Families

The medical and nursing units are engaged to ensure quality medical and nursing support for patients who have chronic and terminal conditions and their families, through impeccably assessing and controlling pain and other symptoms, advanced care planning, supporting the patient and the family psychologically and socially, training caregivers to care for their patients, preparing the family for the end of life phase and providing bereavement support to caregivers. Our care aims at keeping our patients as functional as possible and honoring patients' requests and wishes.

Our nurses are at the heart of the hospice care we provide supported by our medical team members who in addition to conducting home visits provide advice and support to the nursing team on medical issues related to patient care through weekly interdisciplinary meetings.

In addition to the provision of home hospice care, the medical unit empowers SANAD's team members by enhancing their knowledge and skills through internal capacity building sessions pertaining to medical updates in the field of palliative and hospice care.

This year we were able to reach a larger number of patients; 300 patients were admitted under our care as compared to 230 patients in 2018.

Capacity Building and Awareness Raising

Further to its clinical support, the nursing and medical units have an important role, alongside with different units, in building the capacity of other healthcare professionals through theoretical training sessions and practical observerships in addition to raising the awareness of the community on palliative care.

SANAD and KHCC discussing future collaboration.

Mental Health Unit

In 2015, SANAD introduced mental health support provided by a clinical psychologist as part of its interdisciplinary team, in addition to the psychosocial support provided by the nursing team. International literature about evidence-based mental health practice in palliative care has been emerging, however does not take into consideration the contextual and cultural differences of the Arab world. Furthermore, there is scarcity in the literature and evidence-based practice of mental health in palliative care in our region. As such in the past four years, SANAD has been focusing on accumulating field experiences in addition to being informed of international literature to (1) guide our mental health interventions, (2) refine the referral criteria and process between the nursing and mental health teams, (3) develop contextualized training material and (4) establish a structured documentation and reporting system.

Mental Health Unit

The mental health team cared for 45 households and conducted 186 visits to patients or family members referred by the nurses in 2019 compared to 153 visits in 2018.

Clinical Support to Patients and Families

The primary purpose of the mental health team is to provide one-to-one clinical psychological support for patients and family members experiencing mental health challenges related mostly to loss, grief, depression and anxiety. Group therapy, via grief support groups, will also be utilized as an approach to support our caregivers throughout the bereavement phase.

In 2019 and based on staff needs, three capacity building sessions were conducted:

- “Depression Assessment and Management”
- “Anxiety Assessment and Management”
- “Coping with Loss and Role Transitions”

Mental Health as Part of the Interdisciplinary Team

Alongside the team’s direct clinical intervention with patients and families, our mental health team takes part in both the interdisciplinary team meetings, during which it participates in discussing and setting a holistic plan of care for patients, and the weekly discussions for mental health cases. In addition, the team conducts capacity building sessions on relevant mental health topics, targeting the hospice team and their work on the field.

On the other hand, the team’s role extends beyond patient’s care to provide mental health support for SANAD’s hospice team on one-to-one basis, as needed.

In addition, the mental health unit has been developing and refining the referral criteria and process between its unit and the nursing team based on literature, the International Classification of Diseases (ICD) - 11’s Mental and Behavioral Disorders, and its extensive field experience with patients and their families.

Mental Health Unit

Capacity Building and Awareness Raising

The role of our team extends beyond SANAD's internal role to include capacity building projects that target the community and healthcare professionals:

Basic Training targeting junior mental health professionals and students. The training introduces the palliative care approach in general and the mental health in palliative care approach in specific.

Primary/Generalist Training targeting healthcare professionals or professional psychologists in general and those who care for patients with chronic and advanced serious illnesses in specific. The training covers mental health in palliative care, allowing the audience to adopt the approach in their line of work.

Specialist Training targeting psychologists who are/will be working as part of a specialized palliative care interdisciplinary team. The training is comprehensive and provides a thorough understanding of working in mental health in palliative care.

Our team participated in several projects, theoretical trainings, and practical observerships with healthcare professionals; in addition to awareness raising initiatives within the community.

You are a real sunshine in our difficult journey, your positive input reflected on all of us!

You gave us energy, comfort, and hope that our mother will be treated with dignity till the end.

Thank you from the heart.

Quality, Research, and Development Unit

In the quality, research and development unit professionals with nursing and public health backgrounds work together to support SANAD's team in providing high quality hospice care, and take part in a wide range of projects with external partners that focus on service provision, research, awareness raising and advocacy.

Quality, Research, and Development Unit

Internal Projects

The unit works with the medical, nursing and mental health units to ensure the provision of high quality palliative and hospice care through:

- Setting and reviewing standards of care and policies and integrating them into practice
- Collecting and monitoring clinical and operational measures on quarterly basis and setting inter-unit improvement plans
- Fostering inter-unit coordination and collaboration
- Conducting internal capacity building sessions
- Developing a palliative care specific competency-based evaluation to be utilized as a performance appraisal tool to support professional development.

In addition, during this year, the work of the unit focused on instilling a culture of continuous quality monitoring and improvement by emphasizing the importance of accurate documentation, conducting regular chart audits and follow up on measures, regularly disseminating findings to all team members and actively involving the clinical team in quality improvement projects.

External Projects

Further to its role in supporting SANAD's clinical services, the unit's projects also aims at supporting SANAD in playing an instrumental role in advancing palliative care in Lebanon and the region. The unit and in collaboration with all other units has been leading projects that focus on:

- Supporting other healthcare organizations or institutions to establish palliative care service models
- Enhancing the knowledge and skills of healthcare professionals through different training workshops including basic, primary and specialized palliative care trainings
- Raising the awareness of the community through awareness sessions, discussions and activities that target lay people, students and healthcare professionals
- Advocating for policy changes that support integration of palliative care
- Conducting research to generate culturally relevant knowledge in palliative care.

During this year the unit's work included several projects with an emphasis on supporting other institutions to establish their palliative care services and capacity building initiatives.

Fundraising and Management Unit

Fostered by the fundraising events that garnered support from the Lebanese private sector and individual advocates, we expanded our services and laid the groundwork to a steady linear organizational growth throughout the years. With the faltering economic activity in Lebanon, we started to explore potential fundraising opportunities in the region, and with the support of local partners in the corresponding countries, organised, its fourth gala dinner in the UAE with the support of the Lebanese Business Council in Abu Dhabi, a music and p-oetry event in Jordan in partnership with the King Hussein Cancer Foundation, and an awareness raising concert featuring Charbel Rouhana with the support of Zain. Along the same lines, SANAD has been strengthening its relationship with a Lebanese diaspora organisation, namely Act for Lebanon USA, linking it to potential donors, and channeling through more funds to ensure its advancement on service provision level. Similarly, SANAD has been approaching regional and international organisations seeking grants to support the expansion of its hospice services and allowing it to start a long process of knowledge transfer to different stakeholders.

Fundraising and Management Unit

Evolution

With substantial expertise and experience that its service providers have been acquiring throughout the years on medical, nursing and psychological support levels, SANAD proved to be a role model for other palliative care initiatives in Lebanon.

Since 2016, SANAD has been actively involved in projects funded by the World Health Organisation to build the capacity of healthcare institutions, including public and private hospitals in Lebanon, enabling them to provide palliative and hospice care services.

Against the same backdrop, and after targeting national, regional, and international corporations seeking their endorsement for the palliative care cause and consequently gaining their financial support to sustain its operations, SANAD has adopted a more engaging version of collaboration between the private and the third sectors (Civil Society Organizations).

In 2018, SANAD started a long-term partnership with the leading telecom company in the Arab region, Zain, to reinforce the presence of palliative care in the Arab World. Accordingly, Zain was committed, in addition, to support the expansion of SANAD's hospice services in Lebanon, to fund capacity building projects across the Arab region.

Fundraising and Management Unit

Direction

Our humble yet rich experience in fundraising had proven to us throughout the years that the diversification of the sources of funding is an effective ploy to ensure the expansion and the sustainability of our operations.

Over the last nine years, we were able to explore the multifaceted aspects of fundraising, looking into every opportunity to generate and collect funds.

Reaching an appropriate level of maturity, allowing it to cleverly draw its fundraising strategy, SANAD has been aligning its yearly plans in accordance with its growing needs while taking into account the economic conjuncture in Lebanon and the region.

The profound political uncertainty and the bleak economic outlook shaping Lebanon's future, has driven us to rearrange our priorities, bringing our sustainability at the forefront of all our concerns.

Hence, our 2020 fundraising plan is developed along three main axes of sources of funding:

Sources of Funding: 84% Unrestricted 16% Restricted

Distribution of Funds: 79% Service expenses 21% Admin expenses

Fundraising and Management Unit

Activities ● ● ●

In partnership with The Palace theatre, SANAD has organized in April 2019, for the fourth time a Music and Poetry night in Beirut featuring the Lebanese musician Charbel Rouhana and the Tunisian poet Anis Chouchene.

A Heartfelt Thank You From SANAD

As part of their commitment towards initiatives that have substantial and positive impacts on the well-being of different communities, in 2017, Zain the leading regional mobile telecommunications company and Huawei the international communication company, had very kindly supported the operations of SANAD in providing hospice care support services for its patients and their families.

We are deeply grateful to both companies for their sustained support since 2017.

Funds generously granted by Zain and Huawei have enabled the organization to sustain its operations and allowed it to support more patients in Greater Beirut and Mid-Beqaa during these trying times that Lebanon is going through.

What You Need to Know About Palliative & Hospice Care

History and Approach

Dame Cicely Saunders with a patient | Credit: St Christopher's Hospice

The history of modern palliative care goes back to 1967 when it was first initiated at St. Christopher hospice in England.

Cicely Saunders; the founder of this movement, created the concept of “total pain” which revolves around the need to identify and address not only the physical aspect but also the psychological, social, spiritual and practical aspects which interact to influence patient’s health. It follows a patient-centered, family oriented approach that aims at improving the quality of life of patients and their families.

Hospice Care

Palliative care started as what is known by Hospice Care. It is a philosophy and model of care that holds the same pillars of palliative care while focusing on the end of life phase mainly the last 6 months of life.

Hospice care is a comprehensive holistic care that focuses on symptoms management, in addition to psychosocial and spiritual support to enable patients to maintain their dignity and quality of life.

Hospice care treats the person and family rather than the disease and affirms life, neither hastens nor prolongs death.

Support and comfort care measures are provided to empower patients to live as fully and comfortably as possible.

Palliative Care

Palliative care is an extension of hospice care. Over time the concepts and spectrum of palliative care evolved to become wider and more inclusive. Palliative care should be provided:

| To relieve suffering caused by any severe illness be it chronic such as cancer or heart failure, etc. or acute such as major trauma or infectious diseases and pandemics such as COVID-19

| Regardless of how advanced the condition is and from the time of diagnosis,

| At any setting of care including community and home settings, general and specialized hospitals, outpatient clinics, long-term settings and nursing homes.

According to the International Association for Hospice & Palliative Care (IAHPC) “Palliative care is the active holistic care of individuals across all ages with serious health-related suffering due to severe illness, and especially of those near the end of life. It aims to improve the quality of life of patients, their families and their caregivers.”

Barriers to Palliative & Hospice Care

Although palliative care has shown to improve the quality of life, reduce unnecessary hospitalization and the use of health services, several factors have been acting as barriers to palliative care.

According to WHO, barriers to palliative care include:

- Overly restrictive regulations to access and prescribe morphine and other essential controlled palliative medicines
- Lack of training and awareness of palliative care among health professionals
- Cultural taboos related to talking about the notion of death and dying
- Misconceptions about palliative care; including believing that palliative is only applicable to the last weeks of life, cancer patients, and indicates giving up on the patient.

Successful efforts to enhance access to high quality palliative care can only be multi-layered targeting the various aspects that influence a healthcare system whether it is policy and finance, education, advocacy, research, etc. Policy makers need to exhibit stronger commitment towards integrating palliative care into the healthcare system and the educational curricula of healthcare disciplines.

The global need for palliative care will continue to rise due to the increasing burden of non-communicable diseases and ageing populations.

"Each year, an estimated 40 million people are in need of palliative care, 78% of them people live in low- and middle-income countries.

Worldwide, only about 14% of people who need palliative care currently receive it. Currently, fewer than 10% of patients who need palliative care in low and middle-income countries receive it. "

- WHO

Situation of Palliative & Hospice Care in Lebanon

Over the past ten years, several healthcare institutions and organizations established palliative and hospice care models that provide services at hospital and home settings, yet Lebanon is still in dire need for more palliative and hospice care services.

Several national achievements occurred at the policy level over the past ten years which helped advance the situation of palliative care in Lebanon; the latest in 2019, in which the Lebanese Ministry of Public Health issued a Decree No 1/447 that defines the criteria for the reimbursement of palliative care services in hospital and home-based settings by the Ministry. This is a fundamental step towards integrating palliative care into the Lebanese healthcare system hoping that other healthcare coverage bodies will follow suit.

Further achievements are still needed at different levels to progress palliative care in Lebanon amid several other competing national health priorities and in a setting where resources are limited.

National Achievements in Palliative Care

2011: MoPH issued a Decree No 1/486 to establish the National Committee for Pain Relief and Palliative Care.

2013: MoPH issued a Decree No 1/1048 that adds palliative care as a medical specialty recognized in Lebanon.

2019: MoPH issued Decree No 1/447 that defines criteria for reimbursement of palliative care in hospital and home based settings.

Role of SANAD

SANAD as a stakeholder in palliative and hospice care is playing a fundamental role in enhancing access to palliative care. We have been aiming at increasing the number of patients we are serving by increasing the number of our team members. Over the past ten years we were capable of growing our team and providing care for almost 1000 patients and their families.

“

We have laid dad to rest precisely a month back and I finally got the courage finding the words to thank you. I don't know how we would have gotten through dad's last and final days without you. You've seen nothing but death yet you made dying easier; not only that but provided dad with love care and compassion that he knew he was well looked after. Although we wish we have known you earlier you were the blessing in our family when we needed it the most. As you excel your work in every way possible I only hope low profiled hospitals and vulnerable patients can get the chance to acknowledge your efforts in early stages to avoid further pain and suffer. We were one of the luckiest families to know you although for a very short period, we want to spread the word and make it possible that every person in need knows there is an outstanding team to support them by all means. To us you're an absolute proof that angels do walk among us. Thank you.

Our Projects

Projects in Lebanon

Lead by the Quality, Research, and Development Unit, SANAD is playing a local and regional role in enhancing palliative care by technically supporting the establishment of new palliative care service models and building the knowledge and capacity of healthcare professionals and students in palliative care.

Supporting the Establishment of Palliative & Hospice Care Services

Under the auspices of MoPH and in partnership with the World Health Organization (WHO), SANAD has technically supported “Ain Wazein Medical Village” (AWMV) to establish the first home hospice service in the Chouf district. During 2019, AWMV clinical team comprised of nurses, physicians, social workers and psychologists, attended a five day workshop/training delivered by SANAD team.

A 5 day training workshop was delivered via interactive sessions and covered assessment and management of pain and other physical symptoms and psychosocial issues, care of imminently dying, communication, mental health and quality aspects in palliative care. The theoretical training was followed by an eight day competency-based practical observership during which AWMV team rotated with our team while conducting home visits.

The practical observership also involved conducting case discussions and attending interdisciplinary team meetings. In addition to the training, we also supported AWMV in developing their home hospice program organogram, staff job description, clinical and operational policies, assessment tools, documentation forms and indicators. The pilot phase of the home hospice service started in November 2019 during which our team accompanied AWMV team in their home visits for technical support for a period of three months.

During this period, we aimed at (1) supporting AWMV team to provide high quality patient centered and family-oriented home hospice care, (2) evaluating the service using a competency-based approach and clinical and operational indicators, and (3) identifying challenges facing the program and ways to address them to ensure successful implementation of the project.

A Testimony from AWMV's General Manager

Date: 18/05/2020

Our experience with SANAD in home palliative care have made a significant impact to our experience with advanced chronically and terminally ill patients, and emphasized the continuity of care between the inpatient and the home care settings.

This program was significant in reducing the amount of burden for the caregiver and family. Patients would have the chance to stay comfortable at home, provided with all medical and nursing needs were provided at home until last hours of their life.

Results from our experience:

Better understanding of the concept behind hospice and palliative care in Lebanon and creation of a supportive environment, advocating for patients' rights in Lebanon and in the region.

Education to patients and their families is provided on how to deal with their illness and its reality

Holistic approach to hospice care, addressing any medical, social and psychological challenges that face patients and their families.

Staff Self-Evaluation about their confidence to perform palliative care specific interventions.

Adequate number of visit and enough time given for patients and family:

Palliative care team had full information about the program and accordingly gave education for patients and families about the process of care, providing bereavement and grief counseling.

Thank you for your assistance

Sincerely

WHO and SANAD bring palliative care to the forefront of patient support

WHO Lebanon supported the implementation of a Palliative Care (PC) project in collaboration with SANAD the Home Hospice Care Organization as implementing partner. The project encompassed three components; finalizing the establishment of a hospital-based PC service at Rafic Hariri University Hospital (RHUH) in Beirut, establishing a home-based palliative care service at Ain Wazein Medical Village (AWMV) a hospital in Mount Lebanon, and supporting the Children's Cancer Center of Lebanon (CCCL) team in conducting support groups.

The project was successful in finalizing the establishment of a palliative care service at the RHUH through different training and shadowing stages. A noticeable culture change was witnessed where many of the oncologists are now readily referring patients who are benefiting from the services of the well-trained multidisciplinary PC team.

At AWMV, the palliative care team has been trained by SANAD on home-based palliative care, and a system has been established to manage the newly developed service. The PC team started conducting home visits for their palliative care patients in the Chouf area of Mount Lebanon.

In the third component of the project, SANAD built the capacity of CCCL's team members in running and leading support group discussions for their staff in order to alleviate the stressors of their work that usually cause staff burnout. Palliative care has been explicitly recognized under the human right to health, for this reason WHO Lebanon will continue its support to palliative care projects in order to make this service available and accessible to all those who need it in Lebanon.

Introducing Students to Home-Based Palliative and Hospice Care

In order to support healthcare professionals in building their skills and experience in palliative and hospice care, SANAD was approached by several educational institutions to provide a clinical platform for students to conduct their practical observership or practicum as part of their educational degree requirement.

We aim from such collaborations and experiences to introduce palliative and hospice care to future healthcare professionals, sensitize and increase their interest in home-based palliative and hospice care; a relatively novel and unique specialty and practice setting in Lebanon, and mainstream the patient-centered, family oriented approach when caring for patients with advanced conditions. Over the past few years, we have been privileged to take part in shaping the experiences of our future doctors, nurses and social workers.

Testimony by a Nursing Student

It was one of the best things in the course. Home visits were new to me especially the ones for palliative and hospice patients. This experience was very sentimental to me and moving. I was amazed to see how people in their weakest moments view the nurse as their angel and source of support. Nurses within SANAD are like family to patients. It was also really interesting to see the details that the nurses work on for patients like the type of pillow or even quilt, where they want the patients to be extremely comfortable in their last moments”.

...It was honestly, the most interesting rotation.

The way the nurse had established a relationship with the patient and his family members is beyond; she was somehow considered as part of their family. It was really interesting and beneficial which made me realize how important it is to have such care services in Lebanon and making them available to the population, especially the disadvantaged people.

Testimony by Social Workers

I thought that working with palliative patients is not very different from working with regular patients until I touched that practically with SANAD where all the standards and expectations were reversed. With SANAD, you touch the sense of empathy and humanity.. although my humble experience in intervening with and supporting patients from different medical situations, here when you are preparing a family for the loss of their beloved one you find yourself speechless and unable to express! Here, the nurse is not like any nurse! She is the mobile angel moving between homes embracing the patients and their families and alleviating their pain.

Here, when you find the families awaiting the arrival of the nurse on pins and needles to ask for everything that comes to their mind. Here, you can see a family expressing that they wait the arrival of the nurse to see the smile of their beloved patient. Besides that, the psychological care provided by SANAD that seek to relieve their emotional pain, remember them with their strengths and present the first door that can be knocked when any negative thought invades their mind such ending their lives due to the big stress they are going through, as a result, it leads them safely to bid farewell to their beloved ones with peace and comfort!

On a personal level, when choosing palliative care as a subject for my thesis I was a little bit afraid and criticized by many people who do not know literally the meaning of this work! But after my internship I am so glad to be sharing my experience and the value of this brave work!

Thank you. You are the SANAD in word and deed!

During this year our team presented in several conferences and workshops providing healthcare professionals with latest evidence about the palliative and hospice care approach and practices.

Patient Assistance and Care Excellence Congress (PACE)

In May 2019 and as part of the PACE congress that was held at the Notre Dame des Secours University Hospital, we presented a session entitled “Home Hospice Model: From Beirut to Beqaa” that shed light on SANAD's services, model and growth over the past years. This session aimed at sensitizing the audience about palliative and hospice care and its elements and the experience of building a home hospice model in Lebanon. As part of the same congress, we also conducted two workshops that covered (1) pain assessment and management and subcutaneous lines and (2) care of the imminently dying.

In July 2019 and as part of the PACE Continuous Training “Training in Psycho-Oncology and Psychosocial Support in Oncology”, our nursing and mental health team conducted a four hour session that targeted psychologists and covered the assessment of physical and psychological symptoms in palliative and hospice care.

Adapting a Caregiver Evaluation Tool

In an effort to assess and improve the quality of the hospice care we provide, SANAD decided to adopt a caregiver evaluation tool that assesses the satisfaction of caregivers with the care provided.

Since an Arabic hospice specific evaluation tool was not available, SANAD decided to adopt and adapt the Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems Hospice Survey; known as CAHPS-Hospice Survey, that is validated and used in the United States.

The survey consists of 45 multiple choice questions and measures 8 main hospice care aspects; “communication with the family”, “getting timely help”, “treating patient with respect”, “emotional and spiritual support”, “help for pain and symptoms”, “training family to care for patient”, “rating of the hospice” and “willingness to recommend the hospice”.

Following the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality translation guidelines, the survey was translated and culturally adapted by a team of experts.

The survey was tested with six caregivers for comprehension and overall understandability using cognitive interviews. The final version was piloted in February 2019. The survey is sent to caregivers two months after the patient passes away. The survey response rate was 62.4%. The results of the surveys are aggregated and being used as quality indicators to improve our services and will also be used to assess the reliability of the tool in Arabic.

Al Shahid Association Workshop

In December 2019, we participated in Al Shahid Association Scientific Day that was attended by doctors and nurses, during which our team presented four sessions covering main aspects in palliative and hospice care: introduction to palliative and hospice care, communication skills, breaking bad news and caring for the imminently dying.

Enhancing Palliative & Hospice Care in the Arab World

In an effort to strengthen palliative and hospice care in the Arab world, Zain telecom is funding projects that focus on different aspects of palliative and hospice care including supporting service delivery, capacity building and research in Kuwait, Jordan and Lebanon.

In Kuwait

We are technically supporting “Al Sidra Association for Psychological Care of Cancer Patients” to establish the first home hospice program for adult cancer patients in Kuwait. During 2019, Al Sidra clinical team consisting of nurses, physicians and psychotherapist attended a five day training workshop delivered by SANAD team. The theoretical training was followed by a three weeks competency-based practical observership during which the team rotated with SANAD team while conducting home visits. The practical observership also involved conducting case discussions and attending interdisciplinary team meetings. We also shared our knowledge and experience with Al Sidra administrative staff covering human resource, administrative, and fundraising aspects.

We also supported Al Sidra team in developing their program assessment tools, documentation forms and indicators. The home hospice program led by Dr. Amina Al Ansari initiated their services in July 2019. The team is conducting home visits to support cancer patients and their families. During 2020, our team will be shadowing the clinical team to provide technical support and facilitate the pilot phase of this service.

Participants were introduced to communication skills; psychological and psychosocial issues in palliative care; assessment tools and clinical management approaches; the role of mental health professionals; children within palliative care and self-care within the interdisciplinary team. The workshop hosted the Head of Palliative Care Unit at the King Hussein Cancer Centre who gave an overview on the status of palliative care in Jordan. Participants were highly engaged and invested in the novel content of the workshop, tapping into their own experiences on personal and professional levels.

- 96.1% of caregivers reported that they are definitely willing to recommend SANAD to others.

SANAD's nurse was an exceptional nurse. She is so professional and skilled. She also demonstrated high proficiency in building a relationship with the patient based on trust and respect. She is so tactful and discreet as well as so skilled in her job. I can never forget how she used to enquire, regularly ask my mom and especially when she was really doing badly. She passed by to see her at the hospital too and checked on her. Her advice was invaluable to us. It happened that she was also there where my mom lived her last hours and I can never forget how she called me and asked me to come so gently. Thanks to her I was with my mother during her last few minutes before she passed away! My gratitude to her is immense. She is undoubtedly skilled but she is such a human and empathetic person. Only this combination makes professional work in such fields shine! Thank you to her! Thank you to all the team! Beautiful work!
